Bully-proofing Schools Through Emotional Intelligence

Dr. Becky Bailey

To: Knox County Head Start

This book is dedicated to you, the wonderful educators who know in your hearts and minds that discipline is not something we do to children, but something we develop within them. It is also dedicated to my mother, Frances Bailey.

My hope is that someday, awareness of our collective interdependence would make the concept of bullying inconceivable.

Thanks for showing the world
what is possible.
With love & respect
Luby

It has been said by many that it takes a village to raise a child, and for this book, it took much of the planet and nearly nine years! My list of wonderful people to thank is extensive. It starts with the first person who took the time to listen when I would call and say, "Can I read you something?" At this early stage, Linda Harris would listen to my many starts and give excellent feedback. Loving Guidance Associate Vicky Hepler has been writing activities for this book from the beginning. Her patience in all the do-overs is appreciated. In addition to Vicky, Loving Guidance Associate Amy Speidel added insight and organization in all areas, and public school teacher Holly Christian contributed activities for the older grades. These brilliant teachers applied their talents to this book to give back to the many wonderful teachers who put their hearts and souls into their jobs every day.

In the beginning of Conscious Discipline, there were pioneers who were the first in the country to create School Families in their classrooms and schools. My sincere gratitude goes out to Sarah Simpson, Patricia Peaden, Kristen Abel, Roxanne Schreffler and Kim Whitney. Their courage blazed a wonderful path for others. The pictures in this book provide a peek into today's School Families around the globe. Thank you to all the teachers and children for their gracious photographic contributions. Contributions in this book ranging from Lysa Fisher's work with children with autism to Lesa Rice's work with children in Head Start. My hope is that Amy Zolessi from the United States and Lety Valero from Mexico would do the honors of accepting my thanks on behalf of the numerous teacher and student contributions from around the world.

Just as it is important to thank the teachers and students, it is also important to thank the schools themselves for opening their doors to Conscious Discipline. I would like to thank the following elementary schools as a representation of all schools practicing Conscious Discipline: Fern Creek, Bessey Creek, Porter, Little River, Castle Creek, Adams and The Pine School. There were also countless Head Start programs and early childhood centers who made this book possible. I am hoping that Eton school in Mexico City (Mexico), Pam Beard's preschool in northern Virginia, Belinda Lorch's program in Florida and Farias Early Childhood Center in Texas would graciously accept the honors on behalf of all the Conscious Discipline early childhood programs. Several schools have won national recognition using Conscious Discipline. My wish is that Renee Sutherland and Knox County Head Start, who were honored as one of ten National Head Start Centers for Excellence in the United States, would accept my thanks and represent all schools that have made outstanding achievements using Conscious Discipline.

A big thank you goes to everyone at my office. Without them, none of what I do is possible. My deep gratitude and appreciation goes to the Loving Guidance Associates and the Certified Conscious Discipline Instructors who contributed to this book through their many experiences, anecdotes, inspirations, hard work and encouragements. None of this would be possible without your spirit supporting me.

On a bigger plane I would like to thank my family, extended family and Carol Howe, the mentor who heads my spiritual family. These close connections have shaped and changed my mental models of who I am.

On a more grounded level, my thanks also go to the creative team who brought this book to print: Robert Hess for his creative direction, Brandi Beshar for the cover design, Anthony Valdez for the page design, Sarah Whalen-Kraft for line editing, Tracey Tucker for her diligence with the references and Julie Ruffo who is my writing voice editor. Julie, in my mind is my co-writer. Most of the words you read are mine; however, every sentence, paragraph, and chapter organization is massaged by Julie's expertise. We speak in one voice and I am deeply honored to resonate with such a talented person. We make a wonderful team. My hope is that you, the reader, enjoy the fruits of these extraordinary people's labor and find the information within these pages useful in your journey.
